

Case Study

Development of a domiciliary care service that addressed the market failure in social care, including poor quality, lack of continuity of care, workforce challenges and inability to integrate social care and community health services.

How We Helped

- Performing an in-depth market analysis to determine the need, demand and market for the service, analysing market trends and dynamics, assessing levels of competition, the commissioning landscape and possible barriers and opportunities.
- This indicated the most attractive option and highlighted the pitfalls of entering this challenging market with significant pressures both on provider financial sustainability, and recruitment and retention.

How We Helped

- Working with service teams to create an overarching service model designed to meet the needs of both commissioners and service users. Through a tailored, strength-based approach to delivering domiciliary care, this model maintains and improves quality of life, wellbeing and independence in one's own home.
- The granular operating model detail required to build a multi-segment financial model, which illustrated the financial impact of launching the service.

BAXENDALE

How We Helped

- As a result, CHCP effectively de-risked the launch through detailed understanding of risk exposure by customer segmentation by commissioner, geography, package of care complexity and delivery vehicle.
- Central to this was a workforce solution that moved away from zero hours contracts to terms and conditions that would support staff development and retention.

BAXENDALE

How We Helped

- Working with the service manager and wider team to develop an operating framework which established SOPs for referral, assessment, care delivery and discharge whilst ensuring effective integration of the newly procured rostering, scheduling and care planning platform.

BAXENDALE

The Outcome

- The Outline Business Case produced paved the way for the launch of Bee at Home Care, a CHCP run service delivering domestic, personal and complex care.
- The new service has allowed CHCP to meet its dual strategic objectives of stepping in to provide additional capacity for Local Authority commissioners where required, as well as diversifying its revenue streams through entering the self-pay market.

The Outcome

- Close collaboration between the new service and existing community nursing services provide an opportunity to further maintain and improve service user quality of life through its tailored model.
